Electronic Bibliographical/Book Review Databases/Indices:

Academic Search Complete [via EBSCO]

Academic Search Complete (ASC)* is available through at the UC Davis Library website's Databases tab.

An all-purpose academic database that is a good starting point for many topics. ASC provides full-text access to more than 5,500 periodicals, including over 4,600 peer-reviewed journals, and indexing and abstracts for an additional 9,500 journals and 10,000 publications, including monographs, reports, conference proceedings, etc. This scholarly collection offers coverage of information in many areas of academic study including, but not limited to: animal science, anthropology, area studies, astronomy, biology, chemistry, civil engineering, electrical engineering, ethnic & multicultural studies, food science & technology, general science, geography, geology, law, materials science, mathematics, mechanical engineering, music, pharmaceutical sciences, physics, psychology, religion & theology, veterinary science, women's studies, zoology and many other fields. The database features PDF content going back as far as 1887.

Harry Potter Bibliography

<http://www.eulenfeder.de/hpliteratur.html>

In 2004 and since, Cornelia Rémi has maintained an up-to-date and informative website of the vast body of academic scholarship on Rowling's series.

MLA International Bibliography [via ProQuest]

Modern Language Association International Bibliography (MLAIB)* is available through at the UC Davis Library website's Databases tab.

The MLAIB covers international scholarly materials on all languages, literatures, linguistics, and folklore from around the world. It includes citations to items from journals, series, books, essay collections, working papers, proceedings, dissertations, and bibliographies. MLAIB does not index book reviews.

Science Fiction and Fantasy Research Database

<http://sffrd.library.tamu.edu/>

The Science Fiction and Fantasy Research Database is a freely available online resource designed to help students and researchers locate secondary sources for the study of the science fiction and fantasy and associated genres. These include: historical material; books; articles; news reports; interviews; film reviews; commentary; and fan writing. The database was originally compiled by Hal W. Hall, a librarian at Texas A & M University, and draws and expands upon the Science Fiction and Fantasy Reference Indexes of 1878-1985; 1985-1991; and 1992-1995. This index is a useful supplement to the MLA International Bibliography, since it includes both scholarly and fan writing. Does not include book review coverage.

Project Muse: Scholarly Journals Online

Project Muse* is available through at the UC Davis Library website's Databases tab.

<https://muse.jhu.edu>

Project Muse provides full text access to hundreds of journals in the arts, humanities, social sciences and mathematics. It is useful for searching interdisciplinary cultural studies topics. Its full-text search engine permits finer-grained searching than any other index for these journals. Coverage varies by journal.

JSTOR: The Scholarly Journal Archive

JSTOR* is available through at the UC Davis Library website's Databases tab.

<https://www.jstor.org>

JSTOR provides Full-Text access to back files of hundreds important scholarly journals in nearly 50 disciplines spanning the arts, humanities, social sciences and the sciences. Current issues are now included for selected titles. Holdings vary by journal. JSTOR is a not-for-profit organization established with the assistance of the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

The Internet Speculative Fiction Database

<http://isfdb.org/>

The Internet Speculative Fiction Database is “a community effort to catalog works of science fiction, fantasy, and horror”. Its content can be altered and updated by any individuals or groups who have access to the World Wide Web, however, to do so, a user registration is required. This very useful site gathers together bibliographies: author bibliographies, publication bibliographies, award listings, magazine content listings, anthology and collection content listings, yearly fiction indexes, and forthcoming books.
